Martyr Razmik Khachatorian

Masoud Pezeshkian has met the family of Razmik Khachatorian, a Christian martyr of Iran, to pay tribute to his memory.

Marking the birth anniversary of Jesus Christ, Pezeshkian honored the memory of the martyr and expressed appreciation for the patience, sacrifice, and resilience of martyrs' families. He also extended congratulations on the birth anniversary of Jesus Christ and the upcoming Christmas and New Year.

Emphasizing the vital role of all ethnic groups and followers of divine religions in defending Iran's independence, dignity, and territorial integrity, the president described the sacrifices of Christian martyrs during the 80-year war imposed by the Ba'ath regime of Iraq on Iran as a clear symbol of national unity and deep solidarity among the Iranian people.

President Pezeshkian praised the steadfastness of the Khachatorian family, stating that Iran's current dignity and strength are owed to the sacrifices of its martyrs and the perseverance of their families. He stressed that honoring and supporting these families is a permanent duty of government officials.

During the meeting, members of the Khachatorian family, along with Ara Shahverdyan, the representative of Christians in the Iranian Parliament, expressed gratitude for the president's visit and attention. They also reaffirmed their commitment to the ideals of the Islamic Revolution and emphasized their determination to continue the path of the martyrs in service to the country.

Nuclear issue is merely an excuse

Iran's Deputy Foreign Minister for Legal and International Affairs, Kazem Gharibabadi, says the enemies' animosity towards Iran is due to the Islamic Establishment's progress, noting that the nuclear issue is a mere excuse.

Addressing an event in the holy city of Qom on Thursday, Gharibabadi pointed to the 12-day aggression by the Israeli regime backed by the US was not because of pursuing the nuclear program by Iran, but instead they were angry at the Iranian nation's progress under the Islamic Establishment.

"The act of aggression in the midst of negotiations—targeting innocent people, residential areas, and infrastructure—demonstrated that the nuclear issue is purely an excuse," Gharibabadi remarked.

The deputy foreign minister of Iran added that the recent talks with the new US administration were conducted with "complete distrust" and necessary preparations to counter any military action. He emphasized that during the negotiations, "the field [military readiness] and diplomacy were fully aligned."

Gharibabadi asserted that both the Israeli regime and the United States "completely failed" in their military actions against Iran.

He stated that the Israeli regime and Washington both failed to achieve their strategic objectives, while Iran delivered "heavy and painful blows" to the Israeli regime, eventually forcing a request for a ceasefire. He further cited a "powerful attack on a US military base in the region" as evidence of Iran's authority.
